Bunny Lasker is going to appoint a Blue Ribbon Committee right after the first of the year to help study the Constitution of the New York Stock Exchange, and to report suggested changes within three to four months.

He would like to have William McChesney Martin be the Chairman. The five other members of the Committee would be industry men appointed by him (Bunny) and already accepted by Bill if he takes the job.

His decision depends on two things:

- (1) Whether you are agreeable -- (he is afraid that you might be a little angry at him because of his disagreement on income policy).
- (2) Whether his wife will give him permission to come out of semi-retirement which he promised her he would stick to.
