MEMORANDUM FOR

THE PRESIDENT'S FILE

FROM

JOHN EHRLICHMAN

SUBJECT

Report on meeting with Ambassador
Annenberg, John Mitchell
Tuesday, May 9, 1972 - 5:00 p.m.

John Mitchell, Ambassador Annenberg and John Ehrlichman entered the President's office from Steve Bull's office. Upon entering, the Ambassador cried, "There it is!" and moved immediately to an inspection of the Stouben glass star-shaped sculpture bearing the Presidential Seal mounted on green malachite which he saw on the President's desk. It was a gift from the Ambassador and his wife to the President, made from the Ambassador's design and this was his first opportunity to see it in being.

The President was obviously distracted and had his mind on other things.

Ambassador Annenberg sat in one of the chairs by the fireplace, the President in the other while John Mitchell and John Ehrlichman sat on opposite couches.

The conversation ranged across Pennsylvania, Philadelphia and California politics, the state of the conservative party in Great Britain, the Ambassador's problems in having his daughter appointed a delegate to the California State Republican Convention, etc.

While the President made appropriate replies and kept the Ambassador's conversation moving, nevertheless it was evident that the President was heavily distracted by other thoughts.

The meeting lasted about 25 minutes. John Ehrlichman and John Mitchell left in advance of the Ambassador who hung back and had a few private words with the President for a matter of a minute or two.
