THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

MEMORANDUM FOR: BRYCE HARLOW

FROM: TOM CHARLES HUSTON

APRIL 11, 1969

Willard Edwards tells me that the memo which he used to break up the Ted Kennedy trip with his column on Thursday morning had been circulating for three weeks among the Republican members of the Kennedy subcommittee and that he came upon it quite by accident.

Do you think it might be possible to ask the Republican Senators who have occasion to work with Kennedy to keep an eye out for this sort of thing? Edwards says he received many congratulatory calls from other members of the working press corps who thought the embarrassment caused to Teddy was quite humorous. He also says that Teddy doesn't yet inspire the same awe and respect among the press people as his brothers did, and we can safely open up on him. If we wait, however, and he keeps up his full scale campaign, he may lock up the press so we can't hit him with immunity.
