MEMORANDUM FOR: MR. KEOGH

The President agrees with your evaluation of Bruce Catton as a possible author of "The Great Comeback" and feels you should not pursue that any further.

You had suggested Robert Donovan earlier and I raised this with the President and got mixed reactions. I think if we end up with nobody else that Donovan is a possibility and I know, while the President was negative at first, he changed his opinion somewhat as he thought about it.

In other words, if Donovan seems to be the best recommendation, let's go back to the President with that as the final choice and see if he doesn't want to approve it.

MEMORANDUM FOR: MR. KEOGH

The President says that Al Moscow would not be the right person to write the comeback book. His writing ability is not adequate for this task. (On the basis of my past exposure, I would certainly concur.)
