During 1961 and 1962, Facts Consolidated made several statewide studies which included the following questions:

"Did you vote in the Presidential election?" (If yes) "For whom did you vote?"

"Would you rather see a Republican or Democrat as Governor of California?"

"How are you registered to vote?"

In answer to the Question: "How are you registered to vote?"

In response to the latest survey (August) the findings were as follows:

	Negro	Mexican

Brown	84.7%	72.5%
Definite	80.0	58.8

Lean Toward	0,0	2.0
Don't know	0.0	3.9

It is apparent that among the Mexicans, the support Nixon has is firm. The sample is small and therefore subject to considerable error. There are no statistics available that show the percentage of registered voters among Mexicans and it should be pointed out that the earlier Facts surveys were among voters and not over-all population. Therefore, the high percentage of people who claim to have voted do not necessarily reflect the total number of voters available to Nixon.

It should also be noted that these surveys were conducted several months after the election and there is a tendency for people to remember having voted (whether they did or not) and a very decided tendency to remember voting for the winner (whether they did or not).

The most significant figure in this entire breakdown is probably the 13.7% of Mexicans who say they might change from Brown.

Again, however, may I suggest (gratuitously) that there is little indication to support the conclusion that an all-out drive on Mexican voters would produce substantial numbers for Nixon.

DEMOCRATS

Subject: Democrat and Catholic vote trends from last three Facts surveys Distribution: Finch, Haldeman, Chotiner, Klein

On a state-wide basis, the shifts in the Democrat and Catholic voting trends between January, 1962, and August, 1962, are shown on Table I. It will be noted that two new elements were introduced in the trial heats in the August survey: people were asked if their choice (when mentioned) was definite or if they might change, and secondly, a forced question was introduced to reduce the "Don'tknow" category, i.e. "Bo you lean toward Brown or Nixon?" This was, of course, asked of only those who did not immediately indicate a preference to the question, "If the elections were being held today, for which would you vote?"

In the fourth column, I have eliminated the lean-towards and thereby increased the "Don't-know" group for easier comparison with prior surveys.

TABLE I

	January	April	August	August without the forced "lean to" question
Brown	68.9%	64.5%	76.9%	76.9%
Definite Might Change Lean toward	'n		68.6 8.3 3.3	68.6 8.3
Nixon	20.2	13.5	13.3	13.3
Definite Might Change Lean toward			10.5 2.8 1.5	10.5 2.8
Don't know	10.9	22.0	5.0	9.8

Some of this analysis is based on commonly held assumptions, most of which have been established by scholarship as well as practical political experience.

1. Defections among Democrats are more common than among Republicans.

2. Some studies have been shown that active participation in an election, including actual voting, is predictable only among the group that identifies itself as "strong Republicans." Taken as an index to actual voter turnout, this has meant before that "strong" Republicans are much more likely to actually vote than are members of any other group, including "strong" Democrats.*

3. A party-identified person may feel impelled to take his party's position when confronted with a choice between parties or candidates, even though his sense of loyalty is not sufficient to move him into action. (I would like to see the next Facts study include a question on just how likely the people are, at this time, to actually vote. This could of course be broken down by party registration and give us our first clear indication of numerically how the election stands.)

- * Angus Campbell observes in The Voter Decides, "It appears that the degree to which a person actively takes part in an election is determined largely by factors which are not reflected in our measure of party identification...unless he called himself a strong Republican, in which case we could have been almost sure he would vote and reasonably sure he would participate in other ways, too."
-  Campbell, op cit, (p.108), "We must conclude that, for many people, calling oneself a Democrat or a Republican does not imply a serious obligation...even to the extent of voting for it. This is especially true of those people who call themselves Democrats....It may be that for many people party identification does not have the capacity to stimulate overt activity, but does have the power to command support on the psychological level of preferences and attitudes. That is to say, a party-identified person might feel impelled to take his party's position when confronted with a choice between parties, even though his sense of party loyalty was not sufficient to move him into action."

4. I am personally inclined to the theory that the "Dont-knows" represent a part of a larger group who will take little interest in this campaign and who are in fact not likely to vote. I think this is all the more likely to be true of the Democratic registration, remembering that there will almost certainly be a smaller percentage of Democrats turn out than Republicans.

With these assumptions, there is real significance in the fact that 8.3% of the Democrats currently for Brown say they "might change." I am also inclined to think that there are more Democrats who now identify themselves as "definite" for Brown "up for grabs", than there are Republicans in the same category.

Tied very closely to this analysis are the actual figures from the primary. Here, it is interesting to note the number and percentage of Democrats who failed to vote for the top of the ticket. According to Hall Griffin's estimates on the Democrats who failed for the top of the ticket, 13.2% of the Democrats who went to the polls failed to mark a choice for Governor. It would not be accurate to say that all this represents a protest vote against Brown but certainly some of it does. Add to this, the writings for Republicans on Democratic ballots (Nixon and Schell combined) and it means that 18% of the Democrats in the primary who went to the polls did not vote _for Brown.

Re-examining the surfaces, there may be some question about the differences between January Democrats for Nixon and those in April. It would seem likely that the usual occurred here. In January the candidates were not declared and people could declare the preference without the pressures of party loyalty. Whereas, in April when the partisan roles had been assumed, people's loyalty suddenly became involved and there was a rush to identify with the candidate of one's own party. This hypothesis plus the actual figures in the Democratic primary lend certain credence to the observation that Nixon may be closer to the traditional 20% of the Democratic vote as far as actual voting patterns are concerned than the straight survey figures would indicate.

It should not be overlooked that some Democrats may, by proper campaign technique, be persuaded not to vote for the top of the ticket, even though they could not be persuaded to actually defect to a vote for Nixon.

The area breakdowns for the three divisions of the State by Democratic vote are shown as follows:

CONCLUSION

1. After the announcement of candidacies, surveys are influenced both by the voter's feeling and inclination to vote for the candidate and his "intimidation" to align himself, temporarily, with the candidate of the party of his registration. This is usually the duality of the voter up to the closing days of the campaign.

2. In evaluating the figures at this stage, it may be more informative to examine Brown's percentages than Nixon's. An incumbent Governor at this stage should certainly be registering a better percentage within his own party than Brown is currently doing. Brown is still 3% short of the "magic" 80% of his own party's vote and he is 11.4% short among those who declare themselves "definitely" for Brown. My feeling is that the "definite" figures portray a more accurate picture of this election at this time than do any other figures.

3. It may well be that the Nixon percentage back in January, when voters were unincumbered by their party's declared candidates, may have special significance at this time so far as predicting what the voters will actually do in the privacy of a voting booth. (At that time Nixon was receiving support of 20% of the Democrats.)

4. An incumbent has little to sell during the campaign unless voters have already "bought" the wares of the incumbent. It is, there= fore, predictable that Brown will have to fight extremely hard for the additional support he needs from Democrats in order to win.

Catholics

In the case of the Catholics, too, there has been adjustment toward Brown, though he does not control nearly so large a group of Catholics as he does Democrats.

Most of the pro-Brown sentiment among Catholics is located, as one would have guessed, in the Central Coastal counties, where Brown is already strongest and where there are more Catholics.

As has been mentioned, the one issue which seems to come home to Catholics on which they have deep respect for Nixon is the Communist internal threat.

I. TELAL HEAT

a. Total Results

Taking the total results and comparing them with the January-February, 1962 Facts Consolidated Survey, Brown has gained 2.4% points while Nixon has lost 2.1% points.

	Total Population August, 1962	Total Population JanFeb., 1962
Brown	46.3%	43.92
Lean Towards Brown	3.2%	(Not asked)
Nixon	43.3%	45.4%
Lean towards Nixon	2.5%	(Not asked)
Don't know	4.7%	10.7%

However, for the first time in these surveys a new dimension was introduced - that of asking the interviewee if he had definitely made up his mind to vote for Brown or Nixon, or if circumstances might cause him to change his mind before November. And the total result - those who are definitely inclined to the candidates shows a much closer race - Brown 39.9%, Nixon 38.7%.

On the positive side, Mixon continues to lead Brown in the most populous part of the state - i.e. the southern counties. This is true not only of the over-all percentages but of the "definitely decided" voters as well. As could be expected, Brown maintains a substantial lead in the central coastal counties - which has always been his strongest area. In the valley counties, too, Brown is shead.

"Overalls"	Southern Leun	Central Coastal	Valley
Brown	44.0%+ 3-0	47 51.5% · 1 = 56	49.72+ 4= 54
Nixon	46.0% +3 =	49 37.9% + 2- 40	38.9%+3 =42

"Definites"	Southern	Central Coastal	Valley
Brown	38.0%	44.6%	41.6%
Nixon	42.1	32.4	32.5

It must also be noted that Brown has gained in all three groups of counties (including the southern counties) ance January when the last survey was done. Mixon has lost support in all three but less in the southern counties than elsewhere (1.5% points in the southern counties as compared with 3.0 points in the central coastal counties, and 2 points in the valley counties.)

A further and more detailed analysis on a county-by-county basis will soon be ready. In the meantime, comparison between Nixon's current situation as revealed by the Facts survey and his 1960 percentage of the vote may be significant. Considering only the 1960 Kennedy and Nixon votes (without regard for write-ins, etc.), the comparison is as follows:

	1960 Nixon	Facts Survey
	Z of Vote	August,	1962
		RN	EGB
Southern counties	51.7%	51/46.0%	44.0%
Gentral Coast	47.2	42.137.9	51.5
Valley	46.9	43,7 38.9	49.7

It is obvious that Nixon is not yet showing his 1960 strength in any of the three sections of the state. It bears repeating, I believe, that the present situation is not entirely analogous with 1960. The Catholic issue may be assumed to be less important in the gubernatorial race than it was in the Presidential contest. In 1960 Kennedy won 52.8% of the vote in the Central Coast counties. Brown is presently showing 51.5% of the vote. The Central Coast counties are known to have a higher Catholic population than is common to the rest of the state. The Democrats, however, in losing a potential pro-Catholic sentiment in that area, may still pick up a substantial vote in that section of the state because it is Brown's home area. This fact alone is likely to have a significant impact upon Brown's showings in these surveys and in his final vote tally in Hovember.

Numerically, Nixon is better off than the survey would indicate. The situation is such that hard work by the campaign organization can overcome the present imbalance. For example, the average California voter turn-out in the last three gubernatorial campaigns has been 74.16% (It is not possible to estimate the exact voter turn-out by party in the general election. However, it has always been recognized that the Republican turn-out is heavier. These calculations do not, however, take that assumption into account.)

Based on the California registration in June, 1962 of 7,051,589, we could predict a vote in November of 5,229,458. Considering only those who regard their candidate inclination as being definite at this time (39.9% for Brown; 38.7% for Nixon), the numerical result would be a Brown victory by 62,755 votes. This would mean that a change in opinion from Brown to Nixon of one voter per precinct would swing the election to Mixon. Or, the delivery to the polls of two Nixon voters per precinct who would not otherwise vote would mean an election victory for Nixon without any change in current opinion. Both speculations assume that the "definites" are representative of the final outcome of the campaigning.

Again, it must be emphasized that these calculations are made without regard to the anticipated heavier GOP turn-out in November, which could mean Nixon is already even with Brown as far as the actual final tally is concerned.

It should be noted that women are somewhat more attracted to Nixon than are men. This is, of course, a traditional Republican advantage (which regretfully did not hold true in 1960). It should also be noted, as is traditional, that the Republican candidate has little strength with the non-white voters.

Non-White

	Facts Survey JanFeb.,1962	Facts Survey August, 1962
Brown	71.17	75.4%
Nixon	19.9	17.3

Again, there has been a substantial loss, but the real significance would appear to be the hopelessness of improving this situation by such a remarkable degree as would justify the time and effort to be spent on it.

A study of this sort often provides the temptation to concentrate campaign efforts where the weaknesses are found. This urge must be balanced by considerations of the locales of greater potential strength and a simple reading of the numbers of votes available. According to the most recent study, 10.4% of the vote is still "up-for-grabs" in the form of "Don^{*}t-knows" or merely "Lean-towards". This does not take into account the number who will be swayed by the campaign and reverse their present feelings.

If one interprets the "definitely committed" groups as being just that, and all others as being susceptible to campaign persuasion, there is then (21.4% of the vote which may be swayed one way or the other.

The public seems prepared for a close race in the gubernatorial campaign with the Republicans and the younger voters being most convinced that it will be close.

	Total	Republican	Democrat	Other	21-39	40-59	Over 60
Close	78.7	83.6	75.3	76.3	80.7	79.0	73.0
Not close	14.7	10.9	17.4	15.8	13.7	14.5	17.4
Don't know	6.6	5.5	7.3	7.9	5.6	6.5	9.6

The second closest race is anticipated as being that of Lieutenant Governor, but only 59.7% of the public feel this one will be close.

There is no public sense of closeness about the remainder of the races.

Respondents were asked whether they intended to judge each candidate separately regardless of political party or if they felt they would probably go along with all of the candidates nominated by the party of their registration - Only about one-third of the respondents said they intended to vote for a straight party slate. It is worth noting, editorially, that for most voters there is apt to be a repulsion at the idea of strict party allegiance.

b. The Party Strength

This survey, in addition to indicating the percentage of votes "up-for-grabs", also indicates that the Republican voters are most likely to hold constant and the defectors are more likely to be among those with Democratic registrations. Interviewers asked, "Without calling your own party registration but thinking only of the problems California has today, which party do you feel is better able to solve these problems, the Republican or the Democratic"? Among the total population the result, as compared to the actual registration figures, is as follows:

	Actual Registration June, 1962	Facts Consolidated Survey August, 1962
Republican Party	40.2%	37.4%
Democrat Party	56.7	44.3
Don't know		18.3

These figures would indicate that by registration the Democrats are less inclined to regard their own party as the right one for solving California's problems. This conclusion is only partially borne out by a further breakdown provided by the survey. By registration, the following situation comes to light: 79.8% of the Republicans believe the Republican party is better able to solve state problems. Of the Democrats 75.6% feel the Democratic party is better able to solve the problems. More Democrats than Republicans say they don't know which is better able to do the job (17.8% Democrats compared to 14.1% GOP.) Of the registration labeled "Other" (which includes the "decline-to-state", Prohibitionists, etc.), 28.5% believe the Republicans are better able to handle the problems and 24.8% go for the Democrats. This of course also provides the largest "don't-know" category, with 46.7%.

These figures alone lead to the speculation that Brown, at this point in time, can be certain of approximately 75% of the Democratic vote. This is further borne out by the trial heat, in which 68.6% of the Democrats say they are definitely committed to Brown. It is interesting to compare the Democrats who say they are for Brown - 76.9%, with those who say they believe the Democratic party is better able to solve state problems - 75.6%.

Again, by area, the Republican party receives its greatest support as the party better able to solve the state problems from the Southern Counties - though it still runs behind the Democrat party.

BY AREA

	Southern Counties	Central Coast Counties	Valley Counties
Republican Party	38.8%	32.8%	38.6%
Democrat Party	42.8	48.8	43.6
Don't know	18.4	18.4	17.8

The attitudes of Union members towards the Republican party, as well as their attitude towards Nixon, show the following comparison:

Believe Party better able to solve California problems		Supporting in November
	Union Members	Union Me	mbers
Republican Party	25.2%	Nixon	30.9%
Democrat Party	57.8	Brown	58.1
Don't know	17.0	Don't know	5.1

By pro-rating the "don't knows" in the "Party" question and comparing the results with the Nixon - Brown support among Union members, we could speculate that Nixon is running about even or slightly ahead of his Party when the Party is judged in this context.

By race, it should be noted that of the non-whites 74.5% say they believe the Democratic Party is better able to solve the problems and of the same non-whites 75.4% say they are for Brown. Of particular interest, however, is the fact that of the non-whites only 12.3% identified the Republican Party as the one better able to solve the problems while 17.3% of them are inclined to Nixon. And, of this figure, 14.1% say they are definitely for Nixon. This would strongly suggest that Nixon may be nearing his saturation point so far as the non-whites are concerned. That is not to say that it would be impossible to pick up more, but I feel it would have to come primarily through disenchantment with Brown as an individual, rather than through appeals provided by constructive programs. In short, bettering the non-white attraction to the Republican Party may be summarized as a job for the Republican Party itself, long-range, rather than a job which either could be done by Nixon or even should be attempted.

Somewhat the same thing may be said of the young people's enchantment with the Democratic Party. The breakdowns by age groups are:

(ç

	21-39	40-59	Over 60
Believe Republican Party better able to solve state problems	31.5	41.6	41.8
Believe Democratic Party better able to solve state problems	50.6	39.5	40.3
Don't know	17.9	18.9	17.9

In assigning this task to the Republican Party generally, obviously we are not saying that an idea which turned out to be particularly attractive to the young voters should not be a part of Nixon's campaign. Ideas like those presented in the Eisenhower Post article on the heavy tax burden on the young married couple, with the attendant obligation that it throws onto the parents, might be injected into the Nixon campaign with definite impact on the November results.

c. The "Might-Change" Group

The location of the "might-change" votes appears to be as follows:

	Definite for Brown	Might change from Brown	Definite for Nixon	Might Change from Nixon
Southern Counties Cent. Coastal Co.	45.0% 36.5	43.1% 34.9	54.8% 29.2	38.7% 37.5
Valley Counties	18.5	22.0	16.0	23.8
Republican	5.4%	21.2%	81.17	48.67
Democratic Other	91.3 3.3	68.6 10.2	14.4 4.5	32.4 19.0
21-39 years	46.9%	51.3%	35.0%	53.27
40-59 years 60 & over	37.7 15.4	39.1 9.6	47.0 8.0	42.3 4.5
White	84.7%	89.1%	96.7%	93.7%
Non-white	15.3	10.9	3.3	6.3

These results indicate that Nixon has a substantially stronger hold on his "definitely committed" voters in the Southern Counties than does Brown. Conversely, Brown has almost as good a lead in the Central Coastal Counties in the "definite" category.

Among those who say they might change their current allegiance, a division was made between those who say they are currently favoring Brown but might change and those who are currently favoring Nixon but might change. Considering the two groups separately, it is interesting that the potential Brown loss of support from his own party is far greater than Nixon's potential loss from his own party. (Democrats who might change from Brown: 68.6%. Republicans who might change from Nixon: 48.6%.)

The non-white supporters of Brown who fall into the "mightchange" category are not impressive.

Curiously, by group, the largest "might-change" percentage is among the Catholics who are now for Brown. In this group, 50.9% of the Catholics say they are definitely for Brown, while another 10.6% say they might change. Nixon has attracted 23.3% of the Catholics to his "Definite" column. An additional 4.2% are for him but say they might change.

When considering the reasons for possible change in voting intentions it is well to consider what is helping and what is harming each candidate.

Brown: It is clear that he does not have much of a positive image in the minds of the voters. Of the total respondents, 22.5% simply say that he has a good record, is doing a good job, is experienced and/or the incumbent has the advantage. The water program is recalled by 9.2% of the respondents.

People are much more specific in recalling things that have hurt Brown: his stand on capital punishment, narcotics, taxes, CDC, a poor administrator, excessive bureaucracy, budget too large, etc.

Nixon: Here, too, there is not a good recall of the specifics of his campaign. The single issue which is recalled best is his fight against Communism which, in an open-ended question, 3.7% of the people cite the point which has helped Nixon the most so far. Easily the greatest advantage Nixon has is his record, his experience as Vice President and his knowledge of national and foreign problems. With 34% of the people citing these overlapping qualifications as the thing which has helped Nixon the most, it may be that the end result of the campaign will still be a contest of personalities and over-all impressions, rather than the triumph of specifics.

Among Democrats who intend to vote for Nixon there is a strong feeling for Nixon as the better man for the job and a very high disenchantment with Brown. 20.3% of the Democrats voting for Nixon say they don't like Brown and an additional 15.1% say we need a change of government. This would support the theory that Nixon will be the benefactor in a strong campaign attacking Brown, rather than building up Nixon. The survey would indicate, therefore, that this should be the philosophy of the campaign.

The points which have done Nixon the most harm are very evenly divided and the results of the survey do not indicate that he has any specific problem to overcome during the course of the campaign. It is a little disturbing, however, that when asked if they believed Brown's charges concerning Nixon's role in 1964, 47.8% of the respondents said they do believe the charges. The response to the question concerning Nixon in '64 breaks down by party registration as follows:

	Republican	Democratic	Other
Believe charges	23.2%	66.4%	35.2%
Do not believe charges	61.3	22.2	42.4
Don't know	13.5	11.6	22.4

The 25.2% of the Republicans who believe the charges is an unexpected and, I believe, high figure. The follow-up question concerning the possible effect of Nixon saying that he would accept the draft is meaningful in itself but it has further implications as well. 54.5% of the respondents say they feel that such a statement would cause Nixon to lose a lot of his present support. The implication of this figure may be that if Brown concentrates on this issue he may be able to make it stick.

II. ELECTION FACTORS

In this section we attempted to analyze the characteristics of the California voters in general, as well as the characteristics of each candidate's following.

Identification with "extremely liberal groups" and "extremely conservative groups" is analyzed. Presumably the respondents, to at least some degree, were able to identify in their own minds some examples of such groups.

Identification with Liberal Groups	Total	Republican	Democratic	Other	Union Member	Non Member
More inclined to vote for	17.7%	4.7%	27.9%	13.9%	21.1%	15.3%
Less inclined to vote for	40.0	63.7	22.0	40.0	31.8	44.6
Makes no difference	31.8	23.3	38.7	27.9	36.4	29.8
Don't know	10.5	8.3	11.4	18.2	10.7	10.3
Identification with Conservative Groups
More inclined to vote for	24.5	41.5	13.1	13.9	20.0	26.6
Less inclined to vote for	33.8	22.9	41.2	38.2	36.4	32.0
Makes no difference	31.5	27.5	35.0	29.1	33.4	31.1
Don't know	10.2	8.1	10.7	18.8	10.2	10.3

Perhaps the most surprising comparison is the effect on union members of identification with either liberal or conservative groups. Almost the same number say that they would be more inclined to vote for a candidate identified with extremely liberal groups as say they would be more inclined to vote for a candidate with extremely conservative groups. The identification as a "middle-of-the-roader" increases the size of the "makes-no-difference" category. More Democrats are favorably inclined to the middle-of-the-roader than to the candidate identified with conservative groups: 22.6% compared to 13.1% of Democrats who say they would be more inclined to vote for a candidate identified with extremely conservative groups.

Closely related to the impact of group association is the question of the candidates with other political personalities. The survey attempts to evaluate the effect that campaigning by Eisenhower, Rockefeller and Goldwater would have on the Nixon campaign. Only 13% of the people admit that Eisenhower's visit would have any effect on their vote and, as might be expected, he scores higher than either of the other two. Slightly more people, and particularly in the Republican party, would be more impressed by a visit from Goldwater than from Rockefeller (16.1% of the Republicans say that a Goldwater visit would make them more inclined to vote for Nixon against 13.2% who would be impressed by the Rockefeller visit).

As might be predicted, the Goldwater visit would alienate as many Democrats as it would pick up Republicans. 16.8% of the Democrats say they would be less inclined to vote for Nixon if Goldwater compaigns for him.

On the other hand, as compared with the 13% who would be favorably impressed by an Eisenhower visit, 14.7% would be impressed for Brown by a visit from President Kennedy. This slight excess over the Eisenhower figure probably represents both Kennedy's popularity (in spite of recent slippage) and upward bias as well. It is well known in Opinion Research that the very office of the Presidency raises somewhat the number who favor either the person or the issue involved. Pro-John F. Kennedy sentiment runs slightly higher in the Southern counties (15.6%), among Catholics (20.9%), among union members (19.5%) and among non-whitee (28.2%).

Bobby Kennedy loses more support for Brown than he picks up: 8.6% say that campaigning by Robert Kennedy would favorably influence their vote for Brown and 10.2% say that they would be more inclined toxe to against Brown as a result of Bobby Kennedy's campaigning.

Linden Johnson also has a more negative effect than positive.

Of the three, Republicans apparently dislike Robert Kennedy

the most.

When the question is raised, should we elect a Governor who agrees with President Kennedy and his policies, or should we elect a good Governor regardless of whether or not he agrees with Kennedy the answer is overwhelmingly in favor of the latter course: 82.4% as against 15% who favor electing a Governor who agrees with Kennedy. This discovery may be worth publicizing. It is somewhat surprising that only 15% of the people are favorably impressed with the idea. An upward bias alone towards the Presidency should increase that figure. The Southern counties show 17% favored the Governor who agrees with Kennedy, while the Central Coastal counties show only 10.6%.

In all these considerations of the relative strength one acquires by association with groups, it should be remembered that this does not necessarily indicate the relative acceptability of Liberal and Conservative labels. These self-stylings were explored in the Belden survey in California with the following results:

	Total	Democrat	Republican	Independent	White	Negro
Liberal	27%	40%	15%	22%	25%	44%
Conservative	41%	29%	60%	397	43%	24%
Something else	14	13	12	19	14	9
Unreported	18	18	13	20	18	23

As reported before, the word "Conservative" in California solicits a favorable response from not only a great many people of the general public but also a very high percentage of Democrats.

In the Belden survey the orientation of people towards greater government activity as opposed to greater activity by private business was also explored, with the result that 62% of the people feel that private business "should do more", while only 21% feel that government "should do more." 1

The following issues were tested by the current Facts Consolidated survey. The question numbers on any given issue are quoted in parenthesis below:

1. Medicare (7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12)

- 2. New industry need (5, 6, 20)
- 3. Job needs (3, 4)
- 4. Crime (2, 2a)
- 5. Education (1)
- 6. Administrative ability (16)
- 7. Budget (17, 17a, 18)
- 8. Taxes (19, 20)
- 9. Death penalty (21, 22)
- 10. Internal Communism (23, 24)

11. Social welfare (25, 26, 27)

- 12. More product markets (26, 27)
- 13. Water pollution (26, 27)
- 14. Unionizing farm workers (26, 27)
- 15. Review by Legislature of all parts of state budget (26, 27)
- 16. Senate reapportionment (26, 27)
- 17. Better use made of career employees (26, 27)
- 18. Cutting size of bureaus (26, 27)

19. Longer Legislative sessions (26, 27)

- 20. State parks (26, 27)
- 21. Water (26, 27)
- 22. Law enforcement on highways (26, 27)
- 23. Ability of parties to meet needs (42)
- 24. Nixon motives for race (43, 44)

ILI THE ISSUES

In any campaign the time comes when basic decisions must be made concerning the nature of the issues which will be the theme of the campaign. Some considerations on this subject which are apparent thus far in the campaign include: ---- i

ĺ

1) Candidates for state office should confine themselves to state issues.

2) At the same time, public interest is likely to be greater on national and international issues than on state matters.

3) A psychological advantage is created by apparent knowledge of state issues when a state office is involved.

4) Lack of concentration on state issues may lead to subsequent significant attacks which have little to do with the issues, but which cast doubts upon the appropriateness of the very candidacy of the opponent, i.e., he knows nothing about the important state issues but is using this position as a stepping-stone to other rewards.

In the section of the survey labeled State Issues in General, questions 26 and 27 are tallied to determine, first, the public reaction to the issue itself and, secondly, to the question of whether or not there should be more discussion of the issue in the course of the campaign. Many of the subjects covered were presented by Nixon in his Commonwealth Club speech.

Most of these matters are a part of what might be called the constructive program approach.

In making the following observations, the point is not that there should be a vacuum so far as constructive issues are concerned, but rather to analyze the relative persuasiveness of these issues upon the general public.

Summarizing the entire group of issues, one might say that the Nixon position on each is on the side of God, but the interest factor could hardly be lower. For example, actual delivery of California water from the North to the Southern parts of the state is labeled as an important issue which people favor (70.6% of the overall public do so favor it.) As expected, 83.1% of those questioned in Southern California counties feel this is an important issue which they favor. Only 8.4% of the public who feel the matter is important oppose the concept of delivering Northern California water to the South. In the Southern counties 2.8% feel this is important and oppose it; in the Central Coastal counties 18.2% feel that way and in the Valley, 20.1%.

Perhaps these figures show only an anti-Southern California

An even higher percentage of people regard the prevention of water pollution as being an important issue which they favor (89.3%); but this is, after all, a question of being on the side of virtue (in spite of the fact that the survey shows that 1% of the people oppose preventing water pollution.)

When the 12 issues that were tested in questions 26 and 27 are studied carefully, it would appear that the significance of the reaction of respondents is primarily in their feelings towards hearing more about the subject. (Question 27).

Looking at the issues which people were asked to express an opinion as to whether or not they would care to hear more about the subject, there was no issue (save water delivery alone) which solicited a positive response from as much as a third of the interviewees.

An interesting comparison with these results may be found with those published with the Belden survey in California. The Belden questionnaire, it will be remembered, was aimed more at national and international issues than at state or local issues. However, the wording of the questions was approximately the same. A comparison shows twice the number of people saying they would like to hear more about the issues discussed in the Belden survey than those discussed in the Facts survey. (The Belden issues include foreign aid, Berlin wall, anti-trust Laws applied to unions, internal communist threats, excessive power in the hands of the President, etc.).

Anyone wishing to develop a policy statement for the candidate in light of these two surveys would probably be inclined to say that the candidate who can orient himself and his audience to a discussion of California issues in their context of national and international impact will enjoy a distinct listener advantage over the man who speaks from the more provincial point of view.

IV. INTERNAL COMMUNISM

Every indication from both the Facts Survey and the one done by Belden in California indicate that this may be Nixon's strongest potential issue. In the Belden Survey it was determined that 55% of the people feel that Communist threats within the United States are as dangerous as Communist threats from the outside. Respondents were able to evaluate this statement on a +3 to -3 scale. +3 was the strongest possible agreement you could have with the statement and -3 the strongest disagreement. 65% of the general public gave it a +3 rating and 6%a -3 rating. When all of the + ratings were added together 81% of the California public agreed with the statement while 15% disagreed and 4% had no opinion. Generally this ratio was consistent between Republicans and Democrats and negroes. It should be noted, however, that a higher percentage of negroes had no opinion on this matter than was true of the general public. The only siseable disagreement was from the group that identified themselves as "liberals". When asked if they would like to hear more about the issues from candidates 68% said "yes" and 27% said "no".

In Facts' survey we continued the questioning by applying it more directly to a state situation - "do you think that elected state officials should have a definite state program to combat internal Communist threats or leave the job to the federal government?" 56, 2% of the respondents felt that a definite state program was in order; 35, 6% favored leaving the job to the federal government. By areas the results were as follows:

	Southern	Central Coastal	Valley
Have a definite state program	62.0	37.5	59, 7
Leave the job to federal government	31.0	53. 9	34. 6

Again, the issuelas less appeal which must be admitted to Democrats then Republicans and less to non-whites than whites.

There was still another question relating to this subject: it should be noted immediately that this was a forced question in that people were asked to choose between the candidates as to which was best able to meet the threats of internal Communism regardless of whether or not they believed such threats to exist. Nixon scored very well with the general public - 47.7% selecting him to Pat Brown, 29.2%. Of the issues tested this was Nixon's clearest advantage over Brown. Nixon also made his most substantial inroad into the Democratic vote on this issue with 20.3% of the Democrats saying they felt that Nixon was best able to cope with the issue.

Catholics, who showed a slightly higher degree of concern over the Communist issue than the public generally responded to Nixon and Brown on the issue, S4.5% feeling Nixon was the man better able to deal with the situation and 38.5 choosing Brown. Just for the comparison when people were asked about Anderson and Christopher on this issue, Christopher was chosen by the general public as being better able to cope with the issue than Anderson. However, this finding was reversed sofar as the Catholics were concerned with more Catholics feeling that Anderson could deal with the situation better than Christopher.

Nixon also scores higher with the young voters on his ability to handle this issue than he does as a candidate per se. 42.7% of the age group from 21 to 39 years of age choose Nixon as the man best able to deal with the threats of internal Communism while only 38.4% of this age group is currently naming Nixon as their choice for Governor. Somewhat the same thing is true of the non-white vote with 19.5% saying Nixon can deal with Communism while 17.3% of the group are currently supporting Nixon.

V. WELFARE PROGRAMS

Considering the state programs for aid to the aged, aid to widows and orphans, aid to the unemployed and disabled, and aid to needy children, there is a general feeling that the state is doing either about the right amount or too much. Only 15, 9% of the people feel that there is a need to do no re. This is particularly true in the valley counties where there is a much stronger feeling that the state is carrying the programs too far and only 7.4% believe that the state is not doing enough. The non-white vote, which is traditionally the group that demand more state activity in this field, seems relatively satisfied with the amount of present state activity.

Several questions were asked about Medicare and financing of medical care for the aged. The results appear to be quite contradictory. When the words "compulsory' and "voluntary" were used in the question and identified with Nixon and Brown, 47, 1% agreed with Nixon's position while 41, 4% agreed with Brown's.

In further questioning people were asked to choose the best arguments for and against Medicare and then asked to select the argument which comes closest to the "way you personally feel". 53, 2% said that the argument in favor of Medicare comes closest to the way they personally feel while 39, 9% chose the argument against it. On this issue the non-white sympathy is clearly with a Medicare program. 64, 5% agreed with Brown's position even though the word "compulsory" was involved. Only 29% agreed with Nixon's position.

The age group figures are as follows:

	21 to 39	40 to 59	Over 60
Brown	41.8%	39. 0%	46. 8%
Nixon	46.5	49.7	41.8
Don't know	11.7	11. 3	11.4

The argument which was chosen as being best for a government medical care program for the aged is that "medical costs are too high." 39% of the general public feel this is the best argument the proponents could have. The argument chosen best for use by opponents of government paying the aged medical bills was divided as follows:

"The plan would not cover all the aged people who need care" - 18,8%

"The plan would cover a great many people who can afford to pay their own bills" - 18,4% "The plan would lead to socialized medicine" - 15,2%

The non-white vote introduces the argument that "our taxes are high enough already" which the general public regards as the fourth best reason for use by the plan's opponents.

It is interesting that the argument that the plan would not cover all the aged people who need care is not really an indictment of the idea of a government aid plan. Neither is the second argument an argument against the concept but rather is an argument of the shortcomings of the aid plan.

When asked point blank about their present feelings toward Medicare 43. 1% say they favor it; 34. 7% are opposed and 18. 1% have no strong feelings. This is contrary to the findings of the Belden Survey which did not use the word Medicare but described it in terms of a social security plan with taxes deducted from pay checks. 44% in California favored what was described as the new social security plan and 45% favor the voluntary health insurance program.

Finally, 48.5 say that President Kennedy campaigning for Medicare in California would help Governor Brown; 17.7% say it would hurt him and 33.8% say they don't know.

VII. OTHER CONTROVERSIAL ISSUES

While it will be remembered that many people cite Brown's lack of ability as a good chief executive officer in the state, 42.4% of the total public say that he is the man best able to handle the responsibilities of administering the state departments and activities of state employees. This is in my opinion surprisingly high. The identical percentage say that Nixon is the man best able to handle the job and this figure too fails to give the Brown charge of inexperience in state problems the credibility that one might expect. It is probably the case that Nixon's background as Vice President creates a positive impression of his ability.

The California budget of $2 billion a year is cited by two-thirds of the people as being a serious problem but this must be balanced with the previous findings that 70% of the people feel that budgets will go on increasing in the next few years. Nixon, however, does score well as the candidate best able to handle the problem of increasing state government costs.

	Total	Rep.	Dem.
Brown	32, 2%	6.2%	59.9%
Nixon	49.5	81.8	19.8

There is no wholesale concern in the subject of education with 45, 7% of the people saying that California is doing "about the right amount in education". These statistics seem to say "we know it is a big job and it will get bigger but we are doing pretty well."

People are extremely concerned about the crime issue as has been established by previous surveys. There may be some doubt about the validity of the wording of the question which included a reference to "elected state officials". The intention of this was to differentiate between police forces and political leaders. However, 85% of the people said that it is a problem for state officials. Brown was given credit by 42.6% of the people as being the candidate "most sware of this problem" and the one who would do the most about it. Nixon received the support of 38.6% of the people on this issue.

58.2% of the people favor the death penalty and in an open-ended question, 10.9% of the people say that the Chessman case was poorly handled, a good example of the unfairness and inefficiency of the death sentence and that Brown bungled the handling of the Chessman case.

INTRODUCTION

This report contains the findings of a survey conducted statewide among registered voters in California.

The study is concerned primarily with the November 1962 California Election. The main purposes are:

To measure the preferences of California registered voters concerning selected candidates in the election to be held on November 6, 1962

and

To determine the relative importance of the problems and issues of the campaign.

To accomplish the purposes of this study a random sampling plan was used, certain controls were applied and the field work was assigned to sixty Facts Consolidated interviewers. The personal "face-to-face" interviewing method was used, yielding 1641 completed interviews. Interviewing began on Monday, July 30, 1962 and continued through Saturday, August 4, 1962.

Information obtained as a result of the personal interviewing was reported by means of a custom questionnaire designed jointly by Facts Consolidated and its clients.

No control of party affiliation was imposed either in the geographic sampling or on the quota restrictions imposed on the interviewers. The sample produced the following results by party registration as compared with the actual registration in the state of California.

	COMPLETED INTERVIEWS	ACTUAL REGISTRATION (As of close of registration April 12, for June 5, 1962 Primary elections)

THE GEOGRAPHIC SAMPLING PLAN

Population data as of the Preliminary 1960 Census, for all counties in the state, were used in allocating the sample. For purposes of tabulation the State was divided into three regions:

1. SOUTHERN COUNTIES

Imperial, Inyo, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino San Diego, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara and Ventura.

2. CENTRAL COAST COUNTIES

Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, Monterey, Napa, San Benito, San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Solano and Sonoma.

3. SAN JOAQUIN AND SACRAMENTO VALLEY COUNTIES

Butte, Colusa, Fresno, Glenn, Kern, Kings, Lake, Madera, Merced, Sacramento, San Joaquin, Stanislaus, Sutter, Tehama, Tulare, Yolo and Yuba.

The extreme Northern and Eastern Counties were excluded because they represent such a small percentage (3%) of the state total.

Within the three regions the largest counties were selected to represent the region, and the sample was allocated among them as indicated on the following pages. In order to have a meaningful sample in the San Joaquin and Sacramento Valley Counties a disproportionatly larger sample was obtained. However, the results have been weighted according to the area population in all the statistical tables.

In answer to the Questions: "There has been talk about the campaign debating between Nixon and Brown. You may remember that during the 1960 Presidential campaign, there were 4 one-hour debates on television. Today some people say they think that one debate between Brown and Nixon would answer most of the questions. Others say that more would be necessary. Do you feel you would want to hear one debate or would you want to watch more or wouldn't you want to watch any?"

"If the debating takes place, there are several styles that might be used: For example it might be a face-to-face meeting between just Brown and Nixon with them debating the issues with no holds barred --or there might be members of the press to ask questions of the candidates. Which of these two styles would you prefer -- just two candidates -- or -- outside questions?"

In answer to the Question: "California has a variety of programs for aid to the aged -- aid to widows and orphans -- aid to the unemployed--disabled -- and aid to the needy children. Do you feel that the state is carrying these programs too far -- doing about the right amount -- or not doing enough?"

In answer to the Questions: "Some people say that the state budget in the next few years is likely to keep on increasing. Others say that with careful attention the state can hold down budgets. Which do you think is closest to the truth -- that the state budget will be increasing or that it will be held down?"

"If the state budget increases very much, many people believe it will be necessary to raise state taxes...if it had to be a tax which the people as individuals had to pay, which of the following do you think your friends would object to least?"

In answer to the Questions: "The Governor of California is often called the Chief Executive of the state. He is responsible for the work of lots of state departments and the activities of more than 100,000 state employees. On this issue alone - that of administrative ability - which of the two candidates do you feel is best able to handle this responsibility?" "California's current budget is nearly 3 billion a year. It is the largest of all the states. In the June primary, the voters rejected 3 out of 5 bond proposals. Some people say this is a protest against the costs of state government. FACTS CONSOLIDATED Marketing Services Division of C-E-I-R, Inc. In answer to the Questions: "Some people feel that the fact that George Christopher was born in Freece in a mountain cabin and of very humble parents and then came to this country and became a successful businessman and Mayor of San Francisco will help him a great deal in his campaign for Lt. Governor. Others feel it will not be of much importance in his campaign. Would this make you more inclined to vote for him -- less inclined to vote for him -- deen't it make any difference?"

> "Mayor Christopher put through a successful F.E.F.C. Law (Fair Employment Practices Committee) in San Francisco a year before Governor Brown did in Sacramento. Would this make you more inclined to vote for Christopher -- less inclined to vote for him -- or -- wouldn't it make any difference?"
