K: Do I have the wrong impression when I think you are all dragging your feet?

M: I certainly hope you do. What is it this time?

K: We are going to move some things next week, if we can get guidance from the Cambodians on what they want.

M: I don't know what happened to our man. (He mentioned a cable.) We are going to fry him good.

K: The second thing, about which I was supposed to call Marshall Green -- but none of the people at that level are in town today -- is: Do you know about the agreement made between Rogers, Green and K: I don't know what happened, but that is not your doing. To whom do I pass a Presidential directive?

M: You have just done it. I think I'm running the department today. You mean one agent?

K: One agent and one communicator.

M: Helms and the Secretary have been in direct contact since.

K: Yes, but there is a stalemate, and Helms appealed directly to us.

M: I understand now -- one agent and one communicator.

K: I was supposed to issue an order yesterday, but with Marshall leaving town... And now I have to leave town. I don't want to get a question in California as to whether or not I have done anything about this.

M: You have conveyed the message.

K: [REDACTED] have an answer back on Wednesday when we return.

M: The water route is not good. He has to get the local government's views on the other two means and in a hurry.

K: We prefer the air route, but Marshall Green feels so strongly about the other.

M: We are all set.

K: Thank you.
