Title/Event: Hofstra University Nixon Symposium: Opening Session and the First Plenary Session ("The Opening to China")
File Designator/ID No./Format: MVF # 148 VCR
Names/Participants: Professors William F. Levantrosser and Leon Friedman (conference co-directors), Elliot Richardson, Hugh Sidey (Time and Life magazine columnist), Stephen Ambrose (historian), Hofstra University President James Stuart, Han Xu (U.S. Ambassador to China), Frank G. Zarb (Chairman of the Hofstra University Board of Trustees), Dr. Robert C. Vogt (Dean of Hofstra's College of Liberal Arts and Sciences), Robert G. Sutter (China specialist with the Congressional Research Service), C.L. Sulzberger (New York Times foreign affairs reporter), Jerome H. Cohen (lawyer), Kenneth Lieberthal (Director of the University of Michigan's Center for Chinese Studies).
Date: Dec. 27, 1987
Topic/Subject: Elliot Richardson delivers the first address of the conference in which he comments on Nixon's personality, his qualifications for the presidency, his political philosophy, and foreign policy. The succeeding speaker, Hugh Sidey, relays his recollections of Nixon followed by Stephen Ambrose's address comparing and contrasting Eisenhower and Nixon. The next speaker, Ambassador Han Xu, compares U.S.-Chinese relations before and since Nixon's 1972 visit and discusses leadership qualities of Nixon and the Chinese leaders. The next speaker, Robert Sutter, lectures on geopolitical conditions leading to U.S.-Sino rapprochement and the risks taken by Chinese and U.S. government leaders to achieve it.

Sutter's address is followed by comments from discussants Jerome Cohen, Kenneth Lieberthal, and C.L. Sulzberger. Cohen concentrates on the legal ramifications of Nixon's China diplomacy--China's status in the United Nations, the territorial status of Taiwan, and other nations' recognition of the Chinese government(s). Sulzberger comments on Nixon's experience in foreign affairs, the development of his interest in China, and geopolitical conditions making the Nixon visit possible. Lieberthal presents his view of issues relevant to contemporary and future Sino-U.S. relations. The session ends with questions from the audience.

Title/Event: Hofstra University Nixon Symposium: "Appointments to the Supreme Court" and

"Impeachment Proceedings"

File Designator/ID No./Format: MVF # 150 VCR

Names/Participants: "Appointments to the Supreme Court"-- Bernard

Jacob (Hofstra Law School professor), presenter Joseph Calluori (attorney), discussants Birch Bayh (attorney and former senator from Indiana), John MacKenzie (The

New York Times), James B. McClellan

(President of the Center For Judicial Studies). "Impeachment Proceedings"--Leon

Friedman (Hofstra Law School professor), presenters Professor Dagmar Hamilton

(Associate Dean of the Lyndon B. Johnson

School of Public Affairs), Terry Sullivan

(Dept. of Government, UT-Austin), and discussants John Doar (former chief counsel to the House Judiciary Committee), Elizabeth

Holtzman (District Atty., Brooklyn, NY), and

Judge Charles Wiggins.

Date: Dec. 29, 1987

Topic/Subject: The first presenter in "Impeachment Proceedings," Dagmar Hamilton, distinguishes the proceedings of the House Judiciary Committee from the investigations by the special prosecutor and the Committee On Presidential Campaign Activities (Senate Watergate Committee) and gives special attention to Article II, concerning abuse of power, among the five articles of impeachment.

The second presenter, Terry Sullivan, evaluates the following three characterizations about the impeachment process using head-count data from the majority leader's office: support for impeachment among members of Congress built up over time, members of Congress became concerned about the balance of power between the executive and legislative branches, and the system of checks and balances worked.

Sullivan's address is followed by comments from discussants John Doar, Elizabeth Holtzman, and Judge Charles Wiggins. Doar discusses considerations involved in presenting information to the Judiciary Committee and how the committee defined impeachable offenses. Holtzman concentrates on the decision of the Speaker of the House to choose the Judiciary Committee to conduct impeachment hearings, the attitude of committee members toward the proceedings, the decision to televise the proceedings, the definition of impeachment, and the committee's failure to pass an article of impeachment on the bombing of Cambodia.

Judge Charles Wiggins examines the historical antecedents to the doctrine of impeachment, the Judiciary Committee's definition of impeachment, its rejection of a standard for abuse of power, and evidence for articles of impeachment I (obstruction of justice), II (abuse of power), and III (refusal to respond to congressional subpoenas). Questions from the audience follow both sessions.

Title/Event: Hofstra University Nixon Symposium: "The Protest Movement" and "Watergate Re-examined"
File Designator/ID No./Format: MVF # 153 VCR
Names/Participants: "The Protest Movement"--Egil Krogh, David Garrow. "Watergate Re-examined"-- presenters David Riese Simon (Assoc. Prof. of Criminal Justice, San Diego State University), Nancy Kassop (Political Science Dept., State University of New York), Stanley Kutler (Professor of History, U. of Wisconsin), discussants J. Anthony Lukas (author) and Earl Silbert (attorney).
Date: Dec. 29, 1987
Topic/Subject: In "Watergate Re-examined" Professor Simon draws an analogy between Watergate and the Iran-Contra scandal. Professor Kassop relates Nixon's dismissal of Archibald Cox to arguments for and against Presidential removal power and explains the constitutional significance of the removal. Professor Kutler states his opposition to what he considers de- emphasis of the Watergate scandal in revisionist studies of the Nixon administration. Discussant J. Anthony Lucas maintains that the motive for the Watergate burglary was to find what Larry O'Brien knew about Howard Hughes' involvement with Nixon and comments on Jim Hougan's book Secret Agenda. As Earl Silbert, the next discussant, is presenting an evaluation of the FBI investigation of the Watergate break-in, the tape terminates.

Title/Event: Hofstra University Nixon Symposium: address by Jeb Stuart Magruder and two plenary sessions, "Nixon Biographers" and "Social Welfare Policies"

File Designator/ID No./Format: MVF # 154 VCR

Names/Participants: Rev. Jeb Stuart Magruder. "Nixon

Biographers"--William Levantrosser (co-director), Louis Koenig (political science professor), Stephen Ambrose (history professor), Roger Morris (biographer), Herbert Parmet (history professor), Raymond Price (President of the Economic Club of New York and former Nixon speech writer), and James Hickey, Jr. (law professor). "Social Welfare Policies"-- Carl Lieberman (political science professor), Joan Hoff-Wilson (history professor), Robert Finch (Nixon HEW secretary), Elliot Richardson (Nixon HEW secretary), and John Ehrlichman (Assistant to the President for Domestic Affairs).

Date: Dec. 28, 1987

Topic/Subject: The tape begins with Jeb Stuart Magruder's address in which he comments on the Watergate burglary and cover-up. In the session, "Nixon Biographies," Stephen Ambrose compares sources of information on the lives of Eisenhower and Nixon. He is followed by Robert Morris, who emphasizes the importance of Nixon's youth in southern California and his early political career in shaping his character. Herbert Parmet follows by developing the theme of Nixon as a political centrist. Raymond Price then recounts his impressions of Nixon based on their twenty-year personal association. The speakers then respond to questions from the audience.

The session on "Social Welfare Policies" begins with Professor Carl Lieberman's presentation concerning six welfare proposals of the Nixon administration and reasons for their successes and failures in Congress. Joan Hoff-Wilson follows with her thoughts on the origin and development of the Nixon welfare reform legislation. Robert Finch, Elliot Richardson, and John Ehrlichman comment on the presentations of Lieberman and Hoff-Wilson before the session concludes with four questions from the audience.

(Assistant to the President for Domestic Affairs), H.R. Haldeman (Nixon's chief of staff), Robert Finch (Nixon HEW secretary), Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr. (historian), and C. L. Sulzberger (former New York Times columnist).

Date: Jan. 1, 1987

Topic/Subject: Sherri Caven compares "the old Nixon" with "the new Nixon" and suggests techniques used by Nixon to create a favorable impression of himself. John Ehrlichman discourses on the difficulty of categorizing and characterizing Nixon before discussing Nixon's domestic program. H.R. Haldeman offers guidelines for writing a history of the Nixon administration and a critique of the literature on the subject. Robert Finch comments on re-organization of the executive branch, the "New Federalism" and health care.

Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr. delivers a presentation on three aspects of the Nixon legacy--foreign policy, domestic economic policy, and the Nixon presidency's impact on the Constitution. C.L. Sulzberger, the final speaker, discusses foreign policy.

Date: Jan. 1, 1987

Topic/Subject: "Secrecy, the Government, and the Media": The paper readers are John Kincaid and Mark Rozell. Kincaid makes a presentation on the Pentagon Papers case; Rozell delivers a paper on Nixon's concept of executive privilege. Commentators are Gerald Warren, Tom Brokaw, Ron Ziegler, and Howard Simons. Warren comments on the Pentagon Papers case, leaks in the administration, and secrets in the Nixon administrations. Brokaw comments on the withholding of information by government and the press, classification of documents, the Pentagon Papers case, executive privilege, leaks to the press, and the conduct of the press during the Watergate investigation. Ron Ziegler follows with comments concerning prosecution of disclosers of classified documents, executive privilege, and Nixon's personality. Howard Simons offers remarks on the Pentagon papers, classification of documents, leakage of secrets, and the Watergate scandal. The session concludes with questions from the audience.

"Evolution of the Nixon Legacy": Paper readers are Barry Riccio and Sherri Caven. Riccio's paper is titled "Richard Nixon Reconsidered: The Conservative As Liberal." Caven's paper, which supplies sociological theories of rehabilitation to Nixon, compares "the old Nixon" with "the new Nixon" and suggests techniques used by Nixon to create a favorable public image.

The succeeding speakers are John Ehrlichman, H.R. Haldeman, Robert Finch, Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr.; and C.L. Sulzberger. Ehrlichman discourses on the difficulties of categorizing and characterizing Nixon before discussing Nixon's domestic program. H.R.
