MEMORANDUM

To: Chairman Bush
From: Tom Lias
Re: Summary of Comments from TV Experts re Democrat Telethon

Hal Hough, Assistant to the President, CBS-TV Stations:

Telethon professionally produced. Appeared to be quite partisan. Format seems to be a potential money-raiser. GOP should give serious consideration to same, subject to certain considerations.

Charles Crutchfield, President, Jefferson-Pilot Broadcasting Company:

End product was effective. GOP could do a more effective, more convincing job, with stars like John Wayne, Pat Boone, Anita Bryant, Bob Hope, etc. But Presidential actions could make such an effort unnecessary by dramatically improving RMN's image and popularity.

August Meyer, President Midwest Television, Inc.:

Could have been much more successful if entertainment had been stepped up and role of Party leaders reduced. Does not think Republicans should duplicate telethon. There are better ways to raise money on TV - i.e., shorter programs, etc.

Carl Lee, President and General Manager, Fetzer Television Corporation:

Telethon came across as one continuous political speech. Entertainment value was lost in translation. There are better ways for the Republicans to raise money on TV than the tele-thon approach - i.e., well thought-out public appeal spot commercials.

Don DeGroot, Vice President and General Manager, WWJ-TV:
The pacing was slow and the requests for donations trying.
His station executives felt it was not an inspiring program.
Republicans should proceed with caution in considering this technique.

Neil Blackwell Freeman, former Editor, UPI: Show was overproduced, but all things considered, must be seen as a ten-strike for the Democrats. If the GOP chooses a similar enterprise it would invite unfavorable comparisons.
Therefore, a different TV approach should be utilized - if at all.

Ward Quaal, President, WGN Continental Broadcasting Company:
Opposed to telethon of any type. There was a questionable selection of participants on the Democrat Telethon. The production was very bad. Does not think the telethon did a thing to advance the cause of the Democratic Party and cheapened the overall status of government service. He hopes the GOP will never go the telethon route.

D. Thomas Miller, President, CBS Television Stations
Division of CBS:______________________________

Telethon was not particularly well done. In fact, it was boring, repetitious, smug and too abstruse for the general viewing audience. Probably not much sympathy for economic needs of the GOP at this time, but might be beneficial to show that the Republican Party does have some prominent stars who are proud to be members of the Party.

Jay Eliasberg - CBS-TV:
Ratings showed poor viewer participation, as follows:
National Ratings:

For the first part 6.6 per cent of homes, which is 13 per cent of the "share of audience" (homes watching TV at that time) were tuned in. This first part covered 206 stations. The potential - with this number of stations - could have been watched by 99 per cent of the TV set owners in the United States. (7:00 p.m. - 11:00 p.m. = 4,370,000 homes).

For the second part, 11:30 p.m. - 3:00 a.m., watched by 5.3 per cent of homes = 3,510,000 homes. Very bad compared to what NBC would do in that time period with a commercial program. Any network typically gets 30 per cent.

New York City Ratings:

In a 6-station market between 7:30 and 8:00 p.m., before the network programs started, the telethon had a 17 per cent share of audience. At 8:00 o'clock, when the regular network programming came on, the share of audience dropped to 2 per cent. At 8:30, it came back to 9 per cent and from there until 11:00 p.m. varied between 6 per cent and 9 per cent share of audience watching all television. This is a much lower rating than anticipated.

RE: Virginia and New Jersey Governors' Races
DATE: October 1, 1978

The Republican National Committee is giving personnel, speaker assistance, computerized data and high level campaign advice to both these big races.

Our field people are concerned about these races though both appear winnable.

I thought you might like a brief summary on each race.

Also I have attached a somewhat more detailed picture of both races by our able political director Ed Mahe.
