Tuesday, May 27.

Another busy day, with no significant new developments. During noon break, President did a record number of signatures, while settling a half dozen Ambassadors with Flanigan. Pretty mad because morning schedule was overloaded, with no time to prepare remarks for de Jong arrival. Got the Foreign Aid Bill worked out finally, and the Postal Reform Message up to the Hill. A little progress.

I had dinner at Frank Shakespeare's, with Bill Buckley. He's a strange one, rather interesting.
