Mr. Peter M. Flanigan
Office of President-elect Nixon
Hotel Pierre
New York, New York 10021

Dear Pete:

Just a moment ago Russell Ziegler telephoned me and suggested that the enclosed letters about John Stevenson should be sent directly to you. Some time ago Russ had apparently gotten the idea from you that Dr. Glenn A. Olds was the proper clearing point for suggested candidates for positions in the incoming Administration. You know Pat and Jack so there is no particular point in my telling you how highly I think of them both. A quick glance at my letter dated today, November 26th, will indicate what I had intended to send to Dr. Olds.

I am enclosing a list of people who know Jack well in case you want more checkpoints. I also attach copies of letters that I asked Professor Dillard and Art Dean to write to Dr. Olds. A third letter has been addressed to Dr. Olds by Herman Phleger whom you may recognize as senior partner of Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison in San Francisco and as a former Legal Adviser of the State Department in the Eisenhower Administration. Herman Phleger knows President-elect Nixon and may be writing directly to him about Jack. This letter will undoubtedly find its way to your desk.

The last thing you need is additional reading material. However, I feel that Jack is such an outstanding candidate for a job in the State Department that I hope his willingness to serve will not go unnoticed. May I add that I have instigated this flurry of correspondence. However, I have talked to Jack and he is interested in "serving his country."

Sincerely yours,

Dr. Glenn A. Olds,
Nixon-Agnew Headquarters,
450 Park Avenue,
New York, N. Y. 10022.

Dear Glenn:

I understand various persons are under consideration for a senior State Department position.

I would like to recommend to you that serious consideration be given to my partner John R. Stevenson, whom I can recommend very highly.

Prior to joining our firm, Mr. Stevenson graduated summa cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa from Princeton's School of Political International Affairs where he majored in international relations with particular emphasis on Latin America. He spent the summer of his junior year in Chile interviewing various Chilean political leaders, including the present President Eduardo Frei and his principal political rival Salvador Allende.

His political study of Chile, which was awarded the prize for the best thesis in the School of Public and International Affairs, was published in 1942 by the University of Princeton Press.

During the war Mr. Stevenson, after serving in the Latin American Division of Naval Intelligence as assistant to the director of this division and in the Caribbean, served in Spain as Assistant Naval Attache where he worked very closely with the Embassy officials in political reporting.

Following the end of the war Mr. Stevenson was employed as a political desk officer in the Office of American Republic Affairs and passed the competitive Foreign Service examination, but did not accept appointment, resigning from the State Department to enter Columbia Law School.

At Columbia, he was Editor-in-Chief of the Law Review and stayed an extra year as a lecturer in International Law and to complete the requirements for a Doctor's degree which he received following the publication in the Columbia Law Review of his thesis on the Relationship of Private International Law to Public International Law.

Mr. Stevenson joined Sullivan & Cromwell in the fall of 1950 and became a partner on January 1, 1956 and has been principally involved in a very broad range of international matters in his practice here.

In the course of this practice, Mr. Stevenson has worked closely with high government officials in Denmark, Finland, France, Japan, Norway and the Philippines in financial transactions, including the preparation of detailed prospectuses describing the economic, political and financial condition in these countries. He has also worked with the senior officials of the World Bank, Inter-American Bank, European Coal and Steel Community and European Investment Bank.

In the private area, Mr. Stevenson has worked with a broad range of international businessmen and bankers in virtually all countries of Western Europe and to a lesser extent in Latin America and Asia.

He has been particularly concerned in the last three years with the organization and operations of ADELA Investment Company, a multi-national corporation representing over 150 of the leading companies in the United States, Europe and Japan, which has as its objective the promotion of economic development and private enterprise in Latin America through joint ventures with local businessmen. He has in recent months also been working in the organization of a second or multi-investment company to promote economic development and private enterprise in the less developed countries of Asia.

Mr. Stevenson has had extensive experience in negotiating with foreign government officials and businessmen, and in various international claims and arbitral proceedings, representing, for example, the American College of Sofia in respect of its nationalized campus in Sofia.

As special counsel for the foreign committees of the Investment Bankers Association and National Association of Securities Dealers, Mr. Stevenson is fully familiar with the United States Government policies, including the balance of payments program, affecting international, and particularly European, financial transactions.

Mr. Stevenson has also been very active in bar associations and other professional activities serving as Chairman of both the State and the City Bar Association international law committees and for two years as the President of the American Society of International Law.

He was the youngest President of the Society since its founding and in the course of his term had the opportunity to discuss with a broad range of academic scholars in both international law and the related social sciences, government officials and private practitioners a wide range of foreign policy questions.

Some indication of this is given in his two annual addresses to the Society which I enclose as of possible interest. He has also served on the State Department's Advisory Committee on International Law.

Because of his combined experience in both the private practice and the worlds of scholarship and public affairs, I believe Mr. Stevenson is particularly well qualified to participate in broad-gauge and informed policy decisions.

I would be glad to discuss this with you if you so desire.

Sincerely yours,

Arthur H. Dean

Dear Dr. Olds:

Regarding John R. Stevenson of Sullivan & Cromwell.

I have done a little checking in person on this fellow, as Sullivan & Cromwell are our counsel, and everyone speaks very highly of him.

In many opinions he could be a candidate for Under Secretary or Assistant Secretary in the State Department. He is willing and wants to be of help, if he can. He also does not want to be considered pushy or over-anxious which I think, personally, is a fine quality.

I just wanted to add to others - it is my belief that in this young man you have a top-flight prospect, but he will not push himself which I happen to think is to his credit.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Barry T. Leithead

Dear Mr. Olds:

Permit me to identify myself as the recently retired Dean of the University of Virginia Law School and a former President of the American Society of International Law. I have also served the government in a number of consulting and other capacities.

It is my understanding that John R. Stevenson of Sullivan & Cromwell is under consideration for a possible position of responsibility with the Department of State. My unsolicited opinion touching his ability and character may be summed up in four words. He is absolutely topflight.

I have known him for a number of years and have worked with him from time to time. I am also familiar with the reputation he enjoys both at the bar and in the academic community. I can assure you that his appointment would be very warmly received by all who have come within the circle of his influence and I would assume also, by all who know him by reputation. Indeed I can think of no one who better commands as much respect from both sides of our profession--a respect born of an awareness of his personal qualities, his intellectual capacities and his balanced views on the problems confronting the nation.

I am positive his appointment would be in the national interest and would reflect great credit on President-elect Nixon.

I have written in generalities only because I assume the details of his record are already available. If, however, I can supply any desired information please do not hesitate to command me. May I repeat that Jack is absolutely topflight and may I add that his wife is endowed with intelligence, beauty and charm. The President-elect could not do better.

Sincerely,

Hardy C. Dillard

This man is exceptionally well qualified -- State Department or AID area.

He has had extensive State Department and Congressional experience. Also as a private lawyer he has worked with a wide range of foreign problems, particularly those with a Latin American flavor. He would be a fine Ambassador, especially to one of the Latin American countries.

I have known him and his family for over twenty years. I can attest to his political credentials.

Dear Peter,

Enclosed is a copy of the resume of Jerome Alan Cohen, Professor of Law at Harvard University.

As you will note, Mr. Cohen's record is outstanding. He is especially interested in the position as Ambassador to China, Consul-General in Hong Kong, Deputy Assistant for East Asian and Pacific Affairs, Legal Advisor at the Department of State or General Counsel of either the Defense Department or the Arms Control Agency.
