RAIDING

THE NEW YORK TIMES

Rep: General, ^{you} personally endorsed a candidate for the Republican Presidency Candidacy, do you have an endorsement, sir, for the Vice-Presidential candidate?

DDE: Well, not at this moment. In fact that's normally the selection of the Presidential nominee working with the National Committee and they make a selection.

Rep: General, in the light of your endorsement of Mr. Nixon, what advise would you give to Governor Rockefeller?

DDE: Oh, none. He hasn't asked me for any. I must say this, that last Spring before my illness --I don't know just what time it was--a month or so, I had the occasion to talk either personally or over the phone with every prominent Republican leader or potential candidate in my Party. And every one of them made the same to me and to themselves, the same pledge that I have just stated, whoever the nominee may be, I shall support him.

Rep: General, do you think that in a sense your statement will close off or lock in the nomination for Mr. Nixon?

DDE: No I don't. Personally I don't, I don't think that my own personal endorsement is a decisive thing, but I am, frankly--many people have mistakenly thought that I had never liked or supported or really believed in Nixon. This is a mere misapprehension. Speaking out at this time I just want the country to know that I have admired and respected this man and liked the man for ever since I met him back in 1952.

Rep: Does the family connected have any influence on you?

DDE: Well, I think they tried to.

Rep: General, you mention particularly the problem of racial equality.

Could you elaborate on that--do you think that is the dominate issue?

DDE: Do you think what?

Rep: That that is the dominate issue.

DDE: Oh no, I don't think it's the dominate issue, but it's one of the very great ones. We have the issue today of world population explosion, and it's one of the greatest things that's facing us all. Then we have world peace, the uneasiness in the Mid-East, the war in Vietnam, and constant difficulty and scrimmaging around Korea. Here we have a man that's traveled so much and he has such a concern for people that I believe that he believes that the rights and the opportunities of the lowest of our citizens should be exactly those of the highest and most intellectual. It's simply just, what can a man do, and then give him the opportunity. And I'm really sure that he's a true humanitarian.

Rep: When did you last speak with him?

DDE: What's that?

Rep: When did you last speak to him?

DDE: A few days ago.

Rep: Did you tell him at the time that you were going to endorse him?

DDE: I told him that I was--not exactly at this time. But he knows that I'm in his corner.

Rep: How are you feeling, General?

DDE: Oh, I'm feeling great again. It's ah, well, I'm slowly regaining some strength. I had this second heart attack, right on top of another one, and it was difficult--I became, I think, quite weakened but anyway my doctors say I'm doing as well as can be expected. I want to thank you all for coming out. You've been very kind, and I hope that nothing I have said will hurt anybody's feelings, particularly.

Rep: Thank you General.
