Mr. Peter Flanigan
450 Park Avenue
New York City, New York 10022

Dear Mr. Flanigan:

I am writing in behalf of Mr. David Abshire,
Executive Secretary of the Center for Strategic Studies at Georgetown University.

Mr. Abshire is interested in being considered for the position of Director of Intelligence and Research in the Department of State. Enclosed is a copy of his resume.

It has been my privilege to have worked with Dave Abshire on various occasions over the years. He is an extremely able individual and I would strongly urge that every consideration be given to his application. I feel sure he would serve with much distinction and bring credit to the Nixon Administration. Any consideration that may be given to Dave Abshire for this position would be appreciated.

Thank you for your attention to this request.

Sincerely,

Glen Lipscomb

DAVID M. ABSHIRE
Executive Director, The Center for Strategic Studies
Georgetown University

David Manker Abshire was born in 1926 in Chattanooga, Tennessee. He has specialized in the management of policy research on international affairs. He has been Executive Secretary of the Center for Strategic Studies, Georgetown University, since its founding in 1962, a title which was changed to Executive Director in late 1968. He received his doctorate in history from Georgetown with highest academic honors (Gold Key Society).

From 1958 to 1960 he was a member of the Minority Leadership staff of the House of Representatives, and also served as Research Director for the House Republican Policy Committee. He worked with Congressman Lipscomb in the preparation of the Defense and Foreign Policy planks of the Republican Platform over the past three conventions, and directed the 1960 Congressional project on America's defense posture, chaired by Congressman Gerald Ford and including over thirty Congressmen.

A 1951 graduate of the United States Military Academy, he served fifteen months in the Korean War as a front line platoon leader, company commander, and division staff intelligence officer.

At the Center, working under its Chairman, Admiral Arleigh Burke, he has had the direct responsibility for supervising a thirty man staff and coordinating in the past year the policy research of over one hundred experts throughout the world on the various projects, as well as coordinating the Center's Boards and dealing with the various international corporations which support the Center's research. He is the program planner for the Center's international Research Council, chaired by Professor Philip E. Mosely. The Council includes noted professors from Harvard, Yale, Columbia, the University of London, and elsewhere.

In the past several years he has done much personal research on Portuguese Africa and directed a six man team in field research on both economic and political trends. He personally authored the chapters in the book on historical background, race relations, manufacturing and mining, and policy prospects. This research has involved him in other parts of Africa, as well as its general history. The study is now in the process of being published by Praeger. This project, as well as his own travels and interviewing in Africa have given him a special knowledge of the attitudes of both blacks and whites in the conflict developing between black controlled and white controlled Africa -- the prime policy problem facing America in Africa today. His broad background in national security problems would be helpful in view of the increased Soviet interests in the Indian Ocean and such places as Nigeria. He has recently been directing a panel study on Western Europe which has given him additional acquaintance with the former colonial powers and their residual interests in Africa. He knows well the changing situation in Portugal, through many contacts of his father-in-law, Admiral George W. Anderson, formerly Ambassador there.

He has in addition a strong grounding in American history and U.S. race relations as evidenced by his biography The South Rejects a Prophet about which Ralph McGill wrote a foreword. He has extremely widespread contacts with international corporations and is familiar with the problems of and need for private capital investment and know how in developing areas of the world.

His books include National Security: Political, Military, and Economic Strategies in the Decade Ahead (co-editor); Detente: Cold War Strategies in Transition (contributor); Portuguese Africa (editor-author); Conservatism -- Waxing or Waning (Williamsburg, 1964), contributing author, and author of The South Rejects a Prophet: The Life of Senator D. M. Key 1824-1900 (Praeger, 1967). He has contributed articles or reviews to The New York Times, the U. S. Naval Institute Proceedings, Army Magazine, The Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, and the American Political Science Review.

Mr. Bryce Harlow
Assistant to the President-Elect
450 Park Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10022

Dear Bryce:

Following our telephone conversation of the other evening, in which you urged me to send up the names of any top level people whose availability I might learn about who are qualified for sub-Cabinet, policy making, or assistant Secretarial positions, I have given the matter considerable thought and I shall be sending you from time to time such recommendations. However, I realize that positions of this type require the best type of dedicated service, complete loyalty, and a certain type of personality compatability and I assure you I shall not be flooding you with a host of names. and will be sending up only those that I am completely confident can fill the bill.

This letter conveys to you the biographical data and experience background of one such individual. Please do not be "alarmed" because his name is Mundt! John C. Mundt is the son of a cousin of mine, now deceased, from Sioux Falls, South Dakota, but that has no bearing on my strong recommendation of his appointment. It simply accounts for the fact that I have some intimate knowledge of his experience both in government and business and that I have followed his career with more than ordinary interest.

You will note that John C. Mundt is presently a Senior Vice President of the Lone Star Cement Corporation where, incidentally, he is earning around $45,000 a year - or at least he is drawing a salary of that magnitude! When I asked him why he would give up a position paying that much for what would have to be a substantially smaller salary, he told me that he believed the Corporation would give him an extended leave of absence for a career in public service and for some reason or other he seems to have a real yen to help his country and his government which supersedes all elements of remuneration.

I would believe, Bryce, that any Cabinet officer or high public official in the Nixon Administration interviewing John Mundt would be impressed by his capabilities, his personality and his knowledge of various aspects of public affairs. I think that with his background of experience in Latin America, he might well serve for example as an Assistant Secretary of State for Latin Affairs, or for his public background he might well serve as a top level official in the Department of Commerce, HUD, or HEW, or possibly as successor to Ambassador Roth. In all events, I want you to have his file since this is one man I would bet my life on as making an outstanding public servant if a position were offered him of sufficient significance to induce him to leave his present position with the Lone Star Cement Corporation.

On another subject, I am following through with our understanding on the telephone in preparing a list of "white hatted" and "black hatted" present time government officials down here and I shall submit names to you from time to time. It was good talking with you on the phone the other evening and I hasten to remind you that you have not as yet solved my goose problem!

With best wishes and kindest regards, I am

Cordially yours,

Karl E. Mundt, U.S.S.

P.S. There may be other good men in the available pool but I have tried out on a number of our colleagues and others the names of Dillon and Dewey as a possible successor to Secretary Rusk and believe you should know that between the two of them, "it's Dewey by a country mile."

~~Personal and Confidential~~

Mr. H. R. Haldeman
Pierre Hotel
39th Floor
New York, New York

Dear Bob:

I am enclosing in the first instance the final report of the President's Advisory Committee on Foreign Aid which I think is a very imaginative approach to the problem. As you can see the Committee is a first rate committee and I must say I consider it extremely well balanced. Incidentally, George Meany, who disassociates himself from the report never attended one single meeting of the Committee over a period of about two and a half years, which is typical of Meany's performance in any governmental relationship.

Now as to names of people: First of all let me suggest Grayson Kirk until very recently President of Columbia University. Grayson is about 65 years old, but young in body and spirit. He is very knowledgeable in the international field and very fluent in French. I believe he would be a first rate candidate for an ambassadorial post in any European country. He is a life long and dedicated Republican.

I also think you should consider some role for J. E. W. (Wally) Sterling. Until very recently he was President of Stanford University. He, too, is a life long Republican and like Kirk he has great stature in the academic community. He was born in Canada and has honorary degrees from both Canadian and American universities. He could, for example, be a most appropriate candidate for an ambassadorship to Canada.

Another critical post is the office of Special Representative for Trade Negotiations which Bill Roth has occupied for the past several years with the title of Ambassador. I should like to suggest (1) Tom Curtis formerly Republican Representative from Missouri, and (2) John Petty, formerly of the Chase Manhattan Bank and presently Assistant Secretary of the Treasury for International Affairs.

November 21, 1968

I would strongly urge the reappointment of Carter Burgess, presently Ambassador to Argentina for that post. Carter is also a life long Republican and served in the Eisenhower administration. He is about my age, energetic and knowledgeable. He has only been Ambassador to Argentina for the past few months but has already had a considerable impact. He is highly respected in the business community and is deeply committed to the principle of support of American overseas trade activities.

Another critical post in Latin America is the ambassadorship to Brazil and here I would like to throw in the name of Milton Eisenhower whom I think would be a ten strike if he would agree to do it.

Finally (and all of this is related to my long standing interest in and knowledge of Latin America) it is, I think, exceedingly important that we have a tough minded, competent and knowledgeable Assistant Secretary of State for Latin American affairs.

(1) Charles A. Meyer. Age about 55. Presently Vice President of Scars Roebuck in charge of the Eastern Division. Formerly in charge of their international operations which are mainly located in Latin America.

(2) David Bell. Late 40's. Vice President of Ford Foundation for International Affairs. Formerly director of AID and director of the Bureau of Budget. He is extremely able and has great prestige.

(3) Tony Solomon. Late 40's. Career diplomat and presently Under Secretary for Economic Affairs in the Department of State.

(4) Robert Hill. About 50. Formerly Ambassador to Mexico and presently director and consultant to United Fruit Company.

Mr. H. R. Haldeman
Page Three

November 21, 1968

- (5) ~~John Gallagher~~, about 50. Presently Vice President of Sears Roebuck, head of International Division.
- (6) Tom Mann, formerly Ambassador to Mexico and Secretary for Latin American Affairs. Presently Executive Secretary of the Automobile Manufacturers Association.
- (7) Don Meads, President of IBEC which is the Rockefeller Development Corporation for Latin America. He is in his 50's.

I should tell you that in the case of the Latin American people and also in connection with the office of Special Representatives for Trade Negotiations I have consulted with the two men in the business community whom I think are most knowledgeable about this matter. They are David Rockefeller and A. Thomas Taylor, who is President of International Meat Packers, and we are unanimous in our views about these people.

Incidentally, David, Tom and I would be delighted to visit with anyone on your staff who would like to know about these men.

Finally, let me say that in connection with the top Treasury job I am convinced that you can do no better than Rudy Peterson, President of the Bank of America. He is a Republican and very imaginative in the field of finance which, of course, is going to be one of Dick's major problems in the months and years ahead and key to the solution to many of these problems is, in fact, imagination.

With kind personal regards.

Sincerely,

fdm:tw

Re: Clare H. Timberlake

Clare Timberlake would make an excellent Assistant Secretary of State for International Organization Affairs. He is a foreign service officer of considerable experience. At least twelve years duty in Latin America in several different countries. He was also the U.S. Ambassador Plenipotentiary Extraordinaire to the Congo at the time when the Congo crisis erupted. He handled himself with distinction there. He was also the State Department negotiator at the eighteen nation disarmament talks. A very knowledgeable and quite realistic individual.

Re: Clare H. Timberlake

Brilliant performance as a trouble shooter -- extremely hard-nosed negotiator. Special Ambassador during Congo Crisis -- opposed UN aggressiveness -- negotiator at Geneva tied Russian Tsarapkin in knots.
